Organised by: NSS call (University of Mumbai, IMA MAHA, Organ Donation Committee & v4 Organs Foundation)

UN SDG

1.SDG 3: Good Health and Well-being: Organ donation saves lives by providing organs and tissues for transplantation to individuals suffering from organ failure due to diseases, accidents, or congenital conditions. Access to organ transplantation improves health outcomes, enhances quality of life, and contributes to achieving Goal 3, which aims to ensure healthy lives and promote well-being for all at all ages.

2.SDG 10: Reduced Inequalities: Organ donation addresses inequalities in access to healthcare by providing life-saving treatments to individuals regardless of their socio-economic status, ethnicity, or geographic location. It promotes equal access to transplantation services, reducing disparities in health outcomes and contributing to Goal 10's objective of reducing inequalities within and among countries.

3.SDG 17: Partnerships for the Goals: Organ donation requires collaboration between governments, healthcare institutions, non-governmental organisations (NGOs), and civil society to establish effective organ procurement and transplantation systems. By fostering partnerships and cooperation at local, national, and international levels, organ donation initiatives contribute to achieving Goal 17, which emphasises the importance of multi-stakeholder partnerships for sustainable development.

Brief description: On 13th of October, 2023, there was an online training programme conducted as a joint project from various associations to promote awareness. Every 2 minutes 1 Indian ends his/her life, while waiting for a lifesaving organ for transplant. Awareness regarding organ donation is the most effective way to promote organ donation.
