Report Of NSS Unit Activity

Report

Name of the event: - First aid and CPR training

Organized by:- NSS unit and NCC in collaboration with DocSmart and Mahavir International

Day and date: - Tuesday 25th Feb 2024

Venue: - Saboo hall (RJ college)

Time: - 11:00 a.m. to 1:00 p.m.

NO. of volunteers: 30

Objective: - To raise awareness on basic first aid knowledge and to enhance skills that can be crucial in everyday solutions

UN SDG

SDG 3: Good Health and Well-being: First aid and CPR training directly contribute to SDG 3 by equipping individuals with life-saving skills to respond effectively to medical emergencies, accidents, and injuries. By providing timely assistance and stabilizing patients before professional medical help arrives, trained individuals can prevent complications, reduce mortality rates, and improve health outcomes in their communities.

SDG 4: Quality Education: First aid and CPR training promote quality education by providing individuals with practical knowledge and skills that can save lives. Training programs teach participants how to recognize emergency situations, assess injuries, administer CPR, and apply first aid techniques, empowering them to respond confidently and competently in times of need.

SDG 5: Gender Equality: First aid and CPR training programs promote gender equality by ensuring equal access to life-saving skills training for women, men, and gender-diverse individuals. By breaking down barriers to education and empowering individuals of all genders with life-saving skills, these programs contribute to gender equality and women's empowerment.

SDG 10: Reduced Inequalities: First aid and CPR training address inequalities in access to emergency medical care by equipping individuals from diverse socioeconomic backgrounds with life-saving skills. By providing training opportunities in underserved communities, schools, workplaces, and public spaces, these programs help reduce disparities in health outcomes and empower marginalized populations to respond effectively to emergencies.

SDG 11: Sustainable Cities and Communities: First aid and CPR training enhance community resilience and safety, contributing to sustainable cities and communities. Trained individuals can provide immediate assistance during natural disasters, accidents, and other emergencies, helping to minimize the impact of emergencies on communities and support their recovery efforts.

SDG 13: Climate Action: First aid and CPR training programs support climate action by building adaptive capacity and resilience in the face of climate-related emergencies and disasters. Trained individuals can respond effectively to heat-related illnesses, drowning incidents, and other health threats exacerbated by climate change, helping to mitigate the impact of climate-related hazards on vulnerable populations.

SDG 17: Partnerships for the Goals: First aid and CPR training initiatives often involve partnerships between governments, civil society organizations, healthcare providers, and the private sector. By fostering collaboration and knowledge-sharing, these partnerships strengthen emergency response systems, improve access to life-saving skills training, and promote sustainable development outcomes.

Brief description: - On 20th February 2024 mahaveer International and doc smart healthcare system organised an informative training session on first aid and CPR training. First aid refers to the initial medical alternative given immediately after an injury or an accident. It's a short-term treatment that doesn't require special training or technology to administer. No one can produce when or where disaster strike and that's why basic first aid skills like CPR can go a long way.

The event proved to be a huge success where we got to know everything related to CPR. It is given only at the time of cardiac arrest by following basic principles: ABC i.e. Airways breathing and chest compression respectively.

We also performed CPR on the manikin for better understanding that increased confidence in yourself which will automatically lead us to assess any situation to act accordingly and to help when necessary.
