Report

The students must be totally aware about the lab design and how chemicals must be stored in a chemistry laboratory for the safety handling of glass ware and chemicals in the laboratory. This course was designed to ensure that all students would learn about the safety in chemistry lab specifically and in workplace in general. The sessions included how to take precautions so that accidents do not occur. If accidents occur the protocol to be followed for reporting and what measures should be immediately taken. Students were acquainted with the importance of lab coat, protective eyeglasses, protective shoes, avoiding loose garment, and hair to be tied. They were taught how acids must be handled with care while diluting solutions, protocol to be followed, hands to be cleaned after handling chemicals. They were taught about the different signs used as indicators. Students took keen interest and learnt all the safety measures and pledged that they would follow them in the laboratory and when they go out to work. 120 TYBSc and SYBSc students completed the course.
