Department of Philosophy

Dear Professor Amit Valmiki,

It is with great pleasure that our Department of Philosophy has invited you to deliver a lecture under the title "Kierkegaard and Kabir: a Parallel", on May 17th, at the University of Ioannina.

By all means, your lecture was outstanding. Many students commented that for the first time they were able to understand comparative concepts in the thought of the two great thinkers as you marvelously presented them. You were able to engage students in discussions who normally do not participate in class. They noted also that you made yourself available after class and during your office hours and seemed to enjoy your meetings. For us, it is important that our faculty encourage student-teacher interaction. You have fit into our model admirably.

As a colleague who shares some of your research interests, it was gratifying to have someone on the campus that I could discuss my work with. Research is important at the University of Ioannina. Not only does it keep faculty alive in their disciplines, but our students respect faculty who contribute to knowledge. And they especially appreciate research when faculty share their work in class. All in all, we feel honored to have had you as a colleague. We hope you will be able to visit our campus very soon again.

With kind regard
Sincerely,

Lecturer Dr. Panos Eliopoulos
