Report

The main aim GOONJ is to promote understanding of right and wrong in our society and to continue the legacy of our club. By raising public awareness through tailored posters, we drew attention to specific issues and encouraged discussions.

One way to raise awareness is through events like the Cycle Rally, hence we aimed to spread awareness about youth problems such as bullying, depression, and hypertension. Additionally, we wanted to promote physical fitness and educate about health disorders like stress and obesity. To create a world beyond racism and discrimination, where everyone can get their human rights. To help people understand the reasons behind the stressful life many individuals face. Promoting the importance of social topics and being a responsible citizen was our another objective. By addressing issues like bullying and racism in schools and colleges, we took the responsibility for those suffering in our society. Understanding the impact of depression is crucial, as it affects people of all ages and backgrounds worldwide we conducted a public interview named as "Voice of youth" Events like the wash focused on menstrual health and hygiene, which are essential for safeguarding women's dignity, privacy, and self-efficacy. We recognized the challenges faced by those without access to sanitary products, so we decided to distribute sanitary pads as neglecting menstrual hygiene can lead to serious health risks, including infections and complications in reproductive and urinary tract health. The cycle rally was also involved in goonj as we wanted to promote empowerment, leadership, and community development among youth. By participating in the rally, many individuals gained a sense of ownership and a platform to communicate their goals while receiving feedback from the community.

Youth awareness initiatives have a profound impact on various aspects of student well-being. Through interventions, instances of bullying decreased, both in terms of students bullying others and students experiencing bullying. Additionally, there were improvements in anxiety, depression, and overall well-being among students. By openly discussing mental health, misconceptions and stigma were reduced, and individuals were encouraged to seek help and find support networks.

This event was a huge success, leaving a lasting impact on both the participants and the community. The event encompassed various activities aimed at raising awareness about important issues affecting the youth. One such activity was a poster awareness event that focused on topics like depression and bullying in college, sparking meaningful conversations and counseling sessions to address mental health concerns. Additionally, the event provided a platform for members to improve their communication skills and boost self-confidence through
