Report

Bhook, a collaborative project between 11 clubs from 7 different Rotaract Districts around the world, aimed to provide meals to both needy people and animals who lacked access to sufficient food. With a deep understanding of the alarming issue of hunger affecting 8.9% of the global population, Bhook emphasized the importance of valuing food resources and not wasting them. The project successfully instilled a sense of social responsibility among its members, encouraging them to donate any leftover food to those in need. By reaching over 850 deprived individuals and animals across 17 locations, including Mumbai, five cities, four villages in India, as well as Sri Lanka, Brazil, and Nigeria, Bhook replaced hunger with hope and addressed nutrition deficiencies and associated health problems. The collaboration with diverse clubs fostered harmony and cordial relations, strengthening the collective effort to fight hunger and develop a community-oriented mindset centered on compassion and humanity.
