REPORT

Mr Ninad Raut started the session by asking couple of questions to students related to plant identification. His session included simple tips to identify plants in field. This skill set will help the students in getting consultancy for companies which are involved in environment impact analysis. One of the important aspects of EIA is studying the existing flora and fauna and how the new activity will influence or disturb the biodiversity. Various measures can be suggested for taking care of the existing trees afforestation of other barren areas transplanting trees to ensure their survival are such strategies. Students interacted with the speaker.
