Report

The Department of Economics organised a talk on "Local food and its carbon footprint" by Dr. Anil Avhad (Associate Professor, Department of Botany, R. J. College) to celebrate National Nutrition Week (1st September to 7th September 2022) on Wednesday, September 7, 2022, at 8.45 a.m. in Room 33.

Dr. Anil Avhad started his talk with the basics of climate change and its effect on individuals. He said that it is our collective responsibility to educate ourselves about nutrition and dietary intake which helps to tackle the problem of climate change and climate crisis. He talked about the overall benefits of eating local and nutritious food. Eat more locally available and seasonal fruits, vegetables, whole grains, millets and reduce your intake of processed food as it has carbon footprints. Eating healthy is the basic and the most important condition to be fit and healthy. The talk was very lucid and informative. The session was an eye opener in real sense.
