Report

Musical understanding has evolved dramatically in recent years, principally through a heightened appreciation of musical meaning in its social, cultural, and philosophical dimensions. This talk addressed an aspect of meaning that has not yet received its due: the relation of meaning in this broad humanistic sense to the shaping of fundamental values. The talk examined the open and active circle between the values and valuations placed on music by both individuals and societies, and the discovery, through music, of what to value and how to value it. In its own way, music may provoke transformative reflection in its listeners and thus help guide humanity to its own essential embodiment in the world. Music shapes human values and makes human being a real being with ethics.
